Project Goals

1) Analyze Recruitment Challenges and Opportunities

APPLICANT SOURCING IMPACT LIST

Over the course of 2018, over 120 AmeriCorps programs of various sizes, program models, and geographic reach were surveyed and asked to rate the effectiveness of over 75 AmeriCorps applicant sourcing techniques. Programs that were surveyed were then given an opportunity to provide additional narrative to highlight the methods that produced the greatest return on their time and financial investment.

EFFECTIVENESS RATING

Responses were assigned a numerical value between 1-4 and averaged in order to assign an "Effectiveness Rating" to each sourcing strategy:

Very Effective = 4 Effective = 3 Somewhat Effective = 2 Ineffective = 1 Not Applicable = 0

MERITS

Additional "Merits" were then assigned to sourcing strategies based on commonalities identified throughout narrative responses, or if they were considered to be underutilized based on the level of N/A responses.

MERITS KEY

Underutilized/Opportunity	Time Effective	Quality Members	Cost Effective

RECOMMENDATION

Sourcing strategies were then informally divided into three primary categories based on their effectiveness rating:

Strong Recommendation Moderate Recommendation Low Recommendation

Outreach/Partnerships with job training programs Some programs have indicated that this strategy can produce low quality members	2.32
Other Industry-specific job boards (i.e. construction, social work, etc.) Identifying local industry-specific job boards to post your program's service opportunities to will likely be the most effective strategy.	2.23	  	4.B
AmeriCorps/eGrants Portal listing HOW TO: https://www.nationalservice.gov/sites/default/files/resource/Member-Recruitment-Presentation-National.pdf	2.19	 	2.C
Attendance at college/university club days or events (including fraternity and sorority events)	2.19	  	4.C
Coordination with other AmeriCorps or VISTA Programs <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Once all positions have been filled by other programs in your area, ask that those programs direct refer applicants to your application process. Request that your program's recruitment material be distributed to graduating Members from other programs or fields of national service. Offer to assist with other program's Life After AmeriCorps training and use the opportunity to discuss your program's open positions. Attending recruitment events can be time and cost restrictive. Programs with similar recruitment regions have found success by partnering together, educating one another on their program model and recruitment goals, and sharing the responsibility of representing all partnering programs at recruitment events. Outreach to English as a second language communities	2.12	 	6.A

Tiered Budget Suggestions

AMERICORPS MEMBER RECRUITMENT BUDGET RECOMMENDATIONS

When establishing a recruitment budget for your program, the most essential element that must first be considered is your program's staff capacity. Your program can have a recruitment budget of $100,000, but if your staff does not have an enough time to adequately manage, analyze, and optimize the resources, you will likely not be able to meet your enrollment goals. Since we know that relationship building and establishing a word-of-mouth network is still the most effective recruitment strategy, investing in adequate staffing for your program is the most valuable thing your program can do to meet your Member enrollment goals and best serve the community. Additionally, there are many free and extremely low-cost tactics outlined in the ASC AmeriCorps Member Recruitment Resource Guide that can substantially increase the effectiveness of your recruitment efforts if program staff have adequate time to devote to implement those tactics.

Many factors will need to be considered when developing a recruitment budget that will adequately address the needs of your unique program design, but below you will find some generalized recommendations on budget items to consider based on your program's available resources. Keep in mind that updating your recruitment strategy is also a great way to spend unutilized funds towards the end of each program year.

STARTUP Estimate Budget Range $000+
Item/Strategy	Budget Notes
Quality Print Materials	The templates included in the ASC Recruitment Online Marketing Starter Pack can be used for free. -Est. $150 - $400 for printing high-quality items like flyers, rack cards, recruitment business cards, etc.
Supplies for Job Fairs and Other Events	Retractable Banner, Table Runner, Candy/Swag. -Est. $600-$800.

FIRST TIER ANNUAL EXPENSES Estimated Budget Range: $1,500 - $5,000+
Mileage for Travel to Network with Recruitment Partners, Attend Recruitment Events, etc.	Ensure that your staff has an adequate budget to make in-person visits that will be needed in order to build a network of recruitment champions/partners. -Est. $0.50/mile.
Partnership Development Incentives	Incentivize interest by offering to take potential recruitment partners out for a cup of coffee etc. This cost should likely be included outside of the AmeriCorps program budget (non-CNCS funds). -Est. $10/meeting.

Supplemental Guidance for Commissions

RECRUITMENT ADDENDUM FOR COMMISSIONS

BRAND AWARENESS

Take Advantage of Pro Bono Consulting

Commissions should consider posting their marketing needs on sites like TapRoot+ that connect nonprofit organizations with companies and volunteers who are willing to provide pro bono professional services in areas such as marketing to help as needed. Other options to consider are posting marketing/event volunteer opportunities on VolunteerMatch.org or Idealist.org. Some companies also offer severely discounted branding/design services for nonprofits such as Causality's Brand Grant program.

Website Design

Because Commission websites often serve as the online gateway to information for individuals who want to learn more about AmeriCorps opportunities in their state, Commissions should ensure not just that they have a website, but that the site provides up-to-date information about AmeriCorps programs in your state. Commission websites should also be attractive and structured to allow potential applicants to easily locate or link to service opportunities available to them (reference section 3.K in the AmeriCorps Member Recruitment Resource Guide for additional information). Serve Rhode Island's website \(www.serverhodeisland.org\) is a great example of an engaging website that also clearly outlines the benefits of serving as well as clearly directs potential applicants to opportunities within their state.

Social Media

It goes without saying that State Service Commissions should be actively sharing their programs' service opportunities through their social media accounts as well as consistently producing engaging content to help build the AmeriCorps brand in their state (reference section 3 in the AmeriCorps Member Recruitment Resource Guide for additional information). One additional way that Commissions may want to consider utilizing social media to increase recruitment and brand awareness in their state is through engaging social media influencers.

A social media influencer is an individual with a large number of followers who uses a social media platform to express their opinions on specific brands or products, consequently influencing their captive audience. The advance search feature of websites like
